Editorial By Alex. H. WASHBURN

SEVERAL years ago there was cabled over to America from Palestine this news-item: The Jews were damming up the River Jordan for a hydro-power project. And a great Kansas editor, William Allen White of the Emporia Gazette, outraged by this mechanical desecration of a river holy to Christian tradition, wrote a plaintive editorial that rang around the world, "Roll on, O Jordan, Roll on!"

"CALAMITY BIRDS"

President Pledges That the Consumer Will Come Out All Right

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The 1935 cotton crop was estimated Monday at 10,734,000 bales by the Department of Agriculture.

A month ago the forecast was 11,141,000 bales—a reduction since then of 407,000 bales. Production this year by states includes an estimate of 890,000 bales for Arkansas.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Assurance of justice to city dwellers under the administration's farm relief program was voiced Monday by President Roosevelt in a talk to the American Farm Bureau Federation convention.

Cracking down on "political profiteers," dispensers of discord and calamity-howlers, the president spoke briefly of "the broad recovery program," endorsed the new Canadian trade treaty, and stated that the farm program has actually given the consumer net benefits.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Shouted charges of "liar" between industry and government spokesmen Monday gave a tumultuous opening to the business conference summoned by George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's co-ordinator for industrial co-operation.

U. S. Colonizes Pacific Isles as Stops on a Projected Air Line to Australia

Hawaii Is Junction Point for Pacific Aviation Services

There, Clippers Will Divide, One to China, Other to Australia

BY WAY OF SAMOA

Great Flying Boats by Easy Stages Will Reach the Land "Down Under"

An airline operating on regular schedule from California to Australia is envisioned by government officials within two years and already the Pacific is being "prospected" to find islands which would serve as stopover bases. In a series of three stories, of which this is the first, Ernie Pyle, special correspondent for NEA Service, tells of the plans for the airway and describes life on the islands which may be used as "stepping stones."

By ERNIE PYLE

NEA Service Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—About 75 years ago, you might have been sailing blithely over the south Pacific ocean, when all of a sudden you could have seen, far ahead, a man riding across the ocean on a mule.

Now, the thing to do in that case was not to throw your bottle away, or jump overboard, but just keep sailing ahead. And in a half hour or so, you would have seen that the mule was not walking on water, but on dry land.

It is like this: Jarvis island, 1600 miles south of Honolulu, is a small coral island, a mile wide, a couple of miles long. There are no trees on it. It is flat, and that highest spot is 20 feet above water. It's just a dot in the vast South Seas.

People were living on Jarvis in the '60s. There were even women and children, and a mule. The island was so low that an approaching voyager could see the man and the mule long before the land itself came up over the horizon.

On Australia Route

Parvis is one of three islands—Jarvis, Baker, and Howland—which the United States thinks would make a fine stopover base for airplanes flying on regular schedule from California to Australia. Some government officials view such a route as a probability within two years.

So, the government has been prospecting around among the South Sea islands since last winter. Its men have visited every U. S. possession down there, looked the ground over, and left parties to study the weather.

William T. Miller, airway superintendent, of the Bureau of Air Commerce, Department of Commerce, has made three trips to the South Seas since last March, on the coast guard cutter Itasca. He visited eight or ten islands, some inhabited, some not. He picked out three as the most likely, and left men on them. The islands are the three before named—Jarvis, Baker, and Howland.

The solonists are modern Crusoes, with a great many more conveniences than Robinson had—young Hawaiians who study wind and weather in anticipation of the day when the isles will also survive.

Notice of Change in Color Comic Tabloid

Effective this coming Saturday, December 14, the comic "Annabelle" will be substituted for the half-page feature "Flapper Fanny" in The Star's color comic tabloid magazine. This change applies only to the color magazine. "Flapper Fanny" in its one-column form will continue as usual in the daily edition. "Annabelle" has been an outstanding feature of metropolitan papers for several years, and its success has caused NEA Service to add it to the Saturday color comic magazine all over America.

Howland Island, in the south Pacific, has assumed new importance with the plan for a California-Australia airline, as it may be a stopover base. Here, the U. S. coast guard cutter Itasca, ship used for a survey, is shown standing outside the reef, as willing hands pull up the casks containing their water supply for months.

Possible routes for the California-Australia air line are shown on this map, with distances between possible stopover bases, and the way the route would link with the California-China line. The islands of Tahiti and Pitcairn, locale of the motion picture epic "Hulth on the Bounty," appear in the lower right-hand corner of the map.

PARIS, France.—France and Great Britain came to full agreement Sunday night on a new basis for settlement of Italy's war with Ethiopia—a plan which French observers said represents Benito Mussolini's last chance to escape an oil embargo.

The proposals, providing for an exchange of territory between Italy and Ethiopia, fell far short of Il Duce's demands. But it was felt in high French quarters he would find them difficult to reject.

That is because they represent compromise.

Supreme Court of America Writes One Word: Denied

Verdict Closes Almost Last Avenue of Escape for Condemned Man

2 OTHER DECISIONS

U. S. Barred From Collecting Special Liquor Dealer Tax in "Dry" States

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Almost the last avenue of escape from electrocution was closed to Bruno Richard Hauptmann Monday when the Supreme Court of the United States refused to review his conviction of kidnapping and murdering the Lindbergh baby.

In an atmosphere acquirer with the prospect of arguments about to begin over the AAA, the court made known its decision through one word: "Denied."

The court also ruled Monday that the federal government lacks the right to impose a special tax on liquor manufacturers and dealers in dry states since the prohibition amendment was repealed.

A section of the Home Owners Loan Act of 1933 authorizing federal incorporation of building and loan associations, despite the states' wishes, was invalidated by the court. The decision was unanimous.

Was Ladder "Planted"

TRENTON, N. J.—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey pushed his reopened investigation of the Lindbergh kidnapping Sunday despite cold water thrown on the inquiry by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Without referring directly to Lindbergh's reiterated belief that Bruno Richard Hauptmann kidnapped and killed his infant son, Hoffman called for a complete dispelling of all doubts. He said the mystery has put American justice on trial before the world. American court procedure must be above reproach, Hoffman said.

All the "thousands of rumors in circulation," tending to cast doubt on the jury's verdict, must be set at rest, Hoffman asserted.

Parker Seeks "Real" Kidnap

While the governor's statement was being handed to newspaper men in Trenton, Ellis Parker, famous Burlington county detective, was seeking the "real kidnaper" in Mercer county.

Parker was accompanied by a confidential member of Hoffman's staff.

Parker said that he personally knows the man who, he feels certain, kidnapped the first Lindbergh baby. The man, he said, is a resident of Mercer county, an educated German who was suffering a mental distortion of late middle age when the crime was committed. Parker even supplied part of the suspect's automobile license number. It begins, he said, with L-8. "L" indicates issuance for Mercer county.

The detective, Clus Asa, for his deductive successes, gave it as his opinion that the police "framed" Hauptmann on the kidnap ladder evidence. Parker contends that the ladder obviously is of the type used in the peach orchards of Mercer county. The famous "rail 16," which a government expert witness traced to Hauptmann's attic, was "planted" by police, over-anxious for a conviction, Parker averred.

One Dead and 30 Missing in Flood

Swollen Streams Bear Down on City of Houston During Week-End

HOUSTON, Texas.—(AP)—Rain-swollen streams poured into northwest Houston Sunday night and spread over Harris county, leaving one dead, more than 30 persons missing and causing damages exceeding $1,000,000.

Near East Bernard, Texas, Arnold Holub, 26, of Day City, fell from a bridge railing into West Bernard river and was drowned.

No word had been received from 30 residents at Dunn's sawmill in the area cordoned off by Cypress creek. Buffalo bayou at 5 p. m. had risen five feet above its record level during the disastrous flood here in 1929 and was rising eight inches an hour.

The water swept into hundreds of homes here and roared into the basements of Christmas-stocked stores and warehouses.

An unidentified man was reported drowned near the Milam street viaduct. A witness said the man "appeared to be swimming toward a post sticking up from the water when he suddenly disappeared beneath the water."

Reports from points 10 to 20 miles above the city limits indicated the crest was nearing the city.

In other sections of the county, streams were falling along their upper reaches. Flood waters from the eastern section of the county, pouring into Buffalo bayou below the city and into the San Jacinto river, were spreading over lowlands from opposite Pasadena to Morgan's point.

The Red Cross was caring for 300 homeless people, most of them forced from their homes in the Shady Acres and other suburban residential districts northwest of the city.

All-Time Record Hit by Chevrolet

108,876 Cars Is All-Time November Peak for Company

DETROIT, Mich.—Chevrolet Motor company Monday reported a production total of 108,876 units in November, exceeding the previous record for any November in the history of the company by more than 69,000.

The extraordinary increase in a period that heretofore has been one of the industry's low-production months is credited by the company to the effect of this year's introduction of new models in November, instead of in January, as has been the practice.

Besides breaking all November records, last month's total of 108,876 units also exceeded by more than 17,000 units the highest January record in Chevrolet history, thus setting a new high total for the first month's production of newly introduced models.

Reports from dealers so far received are sufficient to indicate that November will set a new record in retail sales by a large margin.

The 108,876 units built during November included the production of the company's 10 assembly plants in the United States, its export plant at Bloomfield, N. J., and 429 cars built at Oshawa, Ont., for the Canadian trade.

As indicating the effect of the early introduction of new models, Chevrolet executives pointed out that November has been exceeded in production this year by only three other months, April, June and July.

It was announced also that during December production will be maintained at the same high rate established last month.

Absolute Zero Is to Be Measured

Electrical Instrument Will Reach Unattained "459.6 Below Zero"

Copyright Associated Press
BERKELEY, Cal.—(AP)—A thermometer to measure the last degree of temperature, from one down to absolute zero where heat ceased to exist, is under development at the University of California.

The instrument has been developed to read accurately down to one-tenth of a degree, by W. F. Giauque, professor of chemistry, and Dr. D. P. MacDougall.

Never before has there been an accurate scale for the last degree. For in this last step in cold fantastic things sometimes happen.

Absolute zero is 459.6 below, Fahrenheit, or 273 below, centigrade. No ordinary methods will register this last degree.

Professor Giauque solves the problem by use of electrical inductance. A coil of wire is placed around the cold apparatus, but is thermally isolated from it by means of a high vacuum.

An alternating electrical current is run through the coil. This current is sensitive to the "last degree," that is, impedance to flow of the current through the coil increases as the temperature is lowered.

Practice sessions will continue for several days before the start of an elimination tournament to decide county champions.

Promoter Bert Mauldin announced Monday that he had suspended professional bouts temporarily and would stage an all-amateur show Wednesday night.

There will be no charges. The public is invited to attend. The arena has a seating capacity of 500 or more. The card for Wednesday night had not been completed Monday, but will be announced possibly Tuesday.

Amateur athletes interested in wrestling or boxing and wishing to compete in the county tournament may get in touch with either Promoter Mauldin or Mr. Rhodes.

The bouts Wednesday night will have no bearing on the tournament. Several shows will probably be staged before the tourney gets underway. Amateur athletes will be given free instruction by Mr. Rhodes.
